ABOUT US

It all began with a tragic incident in Cobb County in 1974. That year, a 9-year-old girl from Cobb County, Debbie Randall, was abducted. She was found two weeks later, raped, and murdered. Her misfortune stemmed from a lack of a safe after-school environment for girls in her area. At the time, the most popular place to be during non-school hours was the local laundromat. Having decided that this was unacceptable, Irma Glover and Joyce Dunaway Parker appealed to the Marietta City Council to provide a safe place for girls in the form of the Cobb-Marietta Girls Club. The Cobb County Commission then helped the club acquire land in the Larry Bell Civic Center Complex, where the Cobb-Marietta Center still resides today. The Club began as a one-room trailer, lent to the organization by Marietta Savings and Loan. Five short years later, Girls Clubs of America officially changed its name nationally to Girls Incorporated. The new name had a more businesslike feel, "because growing up is serious business." The Girls Clubs of Cobb County later became Girls Incorporated of Cobb County.

OUR GIRLS

Yulissa Gerard is a proud member of the Girls Inc. of Greater Atlanta family. When asked about how our programs have inspired her to be strong, smart, and bold she shared, "Girls Inc. has helped inspire me to be strong, smart, and bold by teaching me to trust the process...I have learned that being strong is not just being independent but also depending on others."

Anaiyah Johnson shared, "The Professional Readiness Experience Program (PREP) has pushed me out of my comfort zone as I had my first job interview. I assumed my first job would be at a local fast-food joint, however, PREP has brought me unexpected challenges, which have encouraged me to take leadership roles which has helped significantly in deciding how I will choose my career path."

De'Rayah Herrin is a proud member of the Girls Inc. of Greater Atlanta family. "Girls Inc. has inspired me to be strong by constantly keeping me active...Girls Inc. has inspired me to be smart by providing me with resources to gain knowledge...Girls Inc. has inspired me to be bold by having an environment full of confident, assertive, headstrong women. Being surrounded by such amazing women inspires me to want to be as brave and bold as they are."

OUR FAMILIES

Perrena Bernoudy became a single mom by choice when she became a foster mom to her biological niece, Toi, in December 2010.
